Bio Short Prof. Dr. Toni Loh

Toni Loh (née Janina Sombetzki) is an ethicist (Stabsstelle Ethik) at Stiftung Liebenau in Meckenbeuren on Lake Constance and honorary professor (Ethik der Technik und ihrer sozialen Kontexte) at Hochschule Bonn-Rhein-Sieg, University for Applied Studies, Centre for Ethics and Responsibility (ZEV).

They studied at the Humboldt University Berlin and wrote their dissertation (2009-2013) on the issue of responsibility – Verantwortung als Begriff, Fähigkeit, Aufgabe. Eine Drei-Ebenen-Analyse (Springer 2014) – as a fellow at the graduate school Verfassung jenseits des Staates: Von der europäischen zur Globalen Rechtsgemeinschaft?, supervised by Prof. Volker Gerhardt and Prof. Rahel Jaeggi.

After a post-doc position at the Christian-Albrechts-University Kiel (2013-2016), Toni (Janina) Loh has been a university assistant (Post-Doc) in the field of philosophy of technology and media at the University of Vienna (2016-2021). They published the first German Introduction to Trans- and Posthumanism (Junius 2018) and an Introduction to Robot Ethics in German language (Suhrkamp 2019). Current book projects are (all in German): Feminist Philosophy of Technology (a study book; transcript/utb. 2025), Critical Posthumanist Ethics (transcript 2026) and an Introduction to Polyamory (together with Wulf Loh; Junius 2026).

Toni (Janina) Loh's main research interests lie in the field of responsibility research, trans- and posthumanism, robot ethics, Hannah Arendt, feminist philosophy of technology, theories of judgment, sustainability (esp. in the context of Loh's concept of a critical posthumanist ethics and with regard to artificial intelligence, digitalization, and robotics), polyamory, and ethics in the sciences.